

PHIL LEVANDOSKI IS HOLDUP VICTIM; BANDITS TAKE $89

Three Armed Men Loot Place at Point of Guns and Escape

Kenosha county officials today were continuing their investigation of the holdup and robbery which occurred Monday night at Phil's Place, a roadhouse just south of Trevor, Wis., where Phil Levandoski, the proprietor, was held up and robbed of $89 in cash.

The bandits entered the place when lights in the entire building had gone out during the big thunderstorm Monday. They were armed by two revolvers and a sawed-off shotgun and the first man to enter fired his gun. Levandoski's niece, who was in the room when the holdup men entered, screamed for help and attempted to run. The bandits stopped her at the point of a gun.

Her uncle, who was in the basement at the time, rushed upstairs and was met by one of the armed men who forced him to hold up his hands. The thieves then took $89 from the cash register and while one held Levandoski and his niece at bay, the other two carried out two slot machines.

The trio then jumped in their car and disappeared in the dark. Levandoski notified the Kenosha county authorities at once and a search was started. The car of the bandits was believed to have been seen going through Antioch shortly after the hold-up.

ARREST SUSPECT IN TORCH MURDER

Max Weiner, Chicago Rack- eteer, Is Grilled in Deep Lake Slaying

SECOND SUSPECT IS SOUGHT

The dormant investigation of the slaying several months ago of a young woman whose charred torso was found in the ruins of a burned cottage at Deep Lake, again became the center of interest yesterday with the arrest of one suspect, and another being sought in connection with the murder.

Max Weiner, 41 year old real estate dealer and former head of a butchers' labor union, was taken yesterday by policemen who were detailed to solve the mystery soon after the body of the murdered girl was found by Antioch firemen the night of March 8. The officers acted under orders from State's Attorney Swanson of Cook county, who has worked with Col. A. V. Smith, Lake county State's Attorney, in the effort to clear up the mystery.

Second Man Is Sought
Roche declared that a second man was being hunted. That was as far as he would discuss the case.

Col. Smith refused to enter into any details. "Publicity at this time would be harmful in the solution of this murder," the prosecutor declared.

Col. Smith, it was learned, gave the information to "pick up" Weiner to Roche. Patrolman David Lovino and Julius Slogun found him at his home.

Weiner denied that he knows anything about the slaying, according to information from Chicago. Though the real motive of the torch murder was not determined, it was hinted at the time the torso was found, that the woman was evidently killed in Chicago by gangsters with whom she associated. The front part of the skull, the arms and legs were severed from the body by a butcher's cleaver and then the body was brought to the cottage at Deep Lake and the place was set on fire.

The cottage was owned by Henning Johnson, who was away with his family at the time of the fire. E. W. O'Toole, a Chicago advertising man, had occupied the place the summer previous and satisfied the authorities that he had not been at the place after last December.

A set of keys found near the scene of the fire in March led to the raid by the Chicago police on the butchers' union headquarters at 3807 Roosevelt road, Chicago. The mystery of the raid remained unexplained even after the arrest of Weiner Tuesday night by Detective Bergan and David Lovino and Julius Slogun of State's Attorney Swanson's office.

TWO ARE KILLED WHEN CAR UPSETS NEAR SALEM, WIS.

Fatal Accident Sunday Adds to Week-end Death Toll in County

A fatal accident on route 83 near Salem, Wis., added two more lives to the Lake county death toll during the week. The dead are Mrs. John M. Crowley, Milwaukee, who died in the office of Dr. Beebe, at Antioch, where she had been rushed following the accident, and George A. Quimby, 55, of Chicago, who died at the scene of the accident. Joseph W. Royer, 60, River Forest, was taken to the Kenosha hospital where it was said that he had small chances to recover.

A coroner's jury late Monday found that Mrs. Crowley had come to her death accidentally when she lost control of her car. An extensive investigation had been made by Kenosha county officials because the accident occurred in that county.

A man named Carroll, said to be a part owner of an Inn near Salem where the party had halted, was said to have been injured slightly as were others.

Passing motorists brought Mrs. Crowley to Dr. Beebe's office.

Believe Tire Exploded

Kenosha county officials are of the opinion that a tire exploded. Brakes had been applied vigorously just before the car took to the ditch. This, officials said, may have blown the tire.

The car suddenly took to the ditch and traveled 60 feet before it climbed to the highway. It swung back to the ditch and turned over several times. The injured were extricated from the wreck by passing motorists.

Local Farm Boys Awarded Prize Stock By Pure Milk Assn.

Four boys in Illinois were awarded pure bred calves by the Pure Milk association, as a reward for their attaining the State Farm Degree in the Future Farmer's Association through their efforts in dairying. Two of the four are from Antioch. Robert Hughes and Harold Kennedy are the two youths who have met the special requirements. Antioch should be, and is, proud of its Future Farmers. The development of leadership as emphasized by C. L. Kuttel, teacher of Vocational Agriculture at the Antioch high school, is largely responsible for the many attainments of the local boys.

GLIDER IS HERE; CLUB MEMBERS ARE ENTHUSED

Local Boys Are Anxious For Demonstration of Motorless Flight

The big Detroit-Gull glider, the latest thing in a motorless airplane, arrived in Antioch Tuesday and the charter members of the local Glider club are enthusiastic in anticipation of the first demonstration to be given by an expert from the Mid-West Airways within the next few days.

Ted Stanton, factory representative and organizer of the local club, was expected late today to begin the work of assembling the glider. Several fields have been offered in which to hold the demonstration, but before the selection is made club members will seek the advice of an expert glider.

"Air transportation is the coming thing," a leading resident said today, "and the young air enthusiasts should be given every encouragement." Encouraged or not, Antioch young men have formed a club and have purchased a glider, so it would seem that this is one project that is going over without the regulation o. k. brand usually tacked on by the "powers that be," or used to be. Young blood is great stuff.

Chicagoan Sinks to His Death in Water as Wife Looks On

A tragic end came to a one-day vacation Monday when Otto Pfeister, 27, of 4241 North LeClair avenue, Chicago, was drowned in Slocum lake near Wauconda, while his wife and three-year-old son looked on.

SWIMMING IS GREAT STUFF, SAYS ILLINOIS HEALTH DIRECTOR

Few Forms of Exercise Are More Healthful, Dr.
Hall Asserts

Springfield, Ill., June 26.—Lauding the art of swimming as a factor in self defense as well as a wholesome, invigorating form of exercise, Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, in a bulletin issued today, recommends this sport along with golf and tennis as a health building activity open to everybody, and particularly suitable for hot weather recreation. For swimming, the pools with sanitary supervision are far safer from a health standpoint than open streams and natural ponds which are subject to contamination.

"Everybody ought to know how to swim for the sake of both safety and health," Dr. Hall said. "Many times an inability to swim causes two drownings instead of one, a would be rescuer going down with another whom he attempts to save. Last year there were 373 accidental drownings in Illinois."

"Few forms of exercise are more refreshing or more healthful in hot weather than swimming. Hot weather causes a great increase in the action of the skin which has the duty of regulating the heat of the body. The increased action of the skin results in an automatic germicidal power, reduces the tone and vigor of the digestive system. Furthermore, the skin which functions best when the skin is clean."

"Thus a swim in hot weather not only gives the muscles a splendid bit of exercise but it cools the body, and increases the vigor and tone of the digestive system and aids the skin in its double duty of killing germs and reducing surplus body heat."

"Of course, swimming like everything else can be overdone. People with bad hearts should not participate in vigorous or long swims. Fortunately swimming is something that can be regulated to suit the individual. Everyone in reasonably good health can enjoy the benefits of a swim."

"Golf and tennis are both good forms of exercise but neither is superior to swimming from the health standpoint. A variation of recreational sports frequently gives more satisfaction than to specialize too much. Swimming, however, gives a more general stimulating and tonic effect in hot weather than any of the other conventional sports."

Where Sand Came From
Every grain of sand is a separate piece of mineral matter formed millions of years ago. Sand is the result of the wearing away by nature's processes of sandstone, or even granite, the powdered waste being carried by wind or river to sea level. This granule could only have been originally formed by great heat and pressure in the depths of the earth.

Three Hot Weather Salads

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef
The Plaza Hotel, New York City

THE salad is always welcome serving as the pièce de résistance of the meal. It is doubly welcome if it is prepared with the thoughtful care which every really good cook delights in devoting to a dish that can be made so appealing to the most fastidious appetite.

Chef Boggia

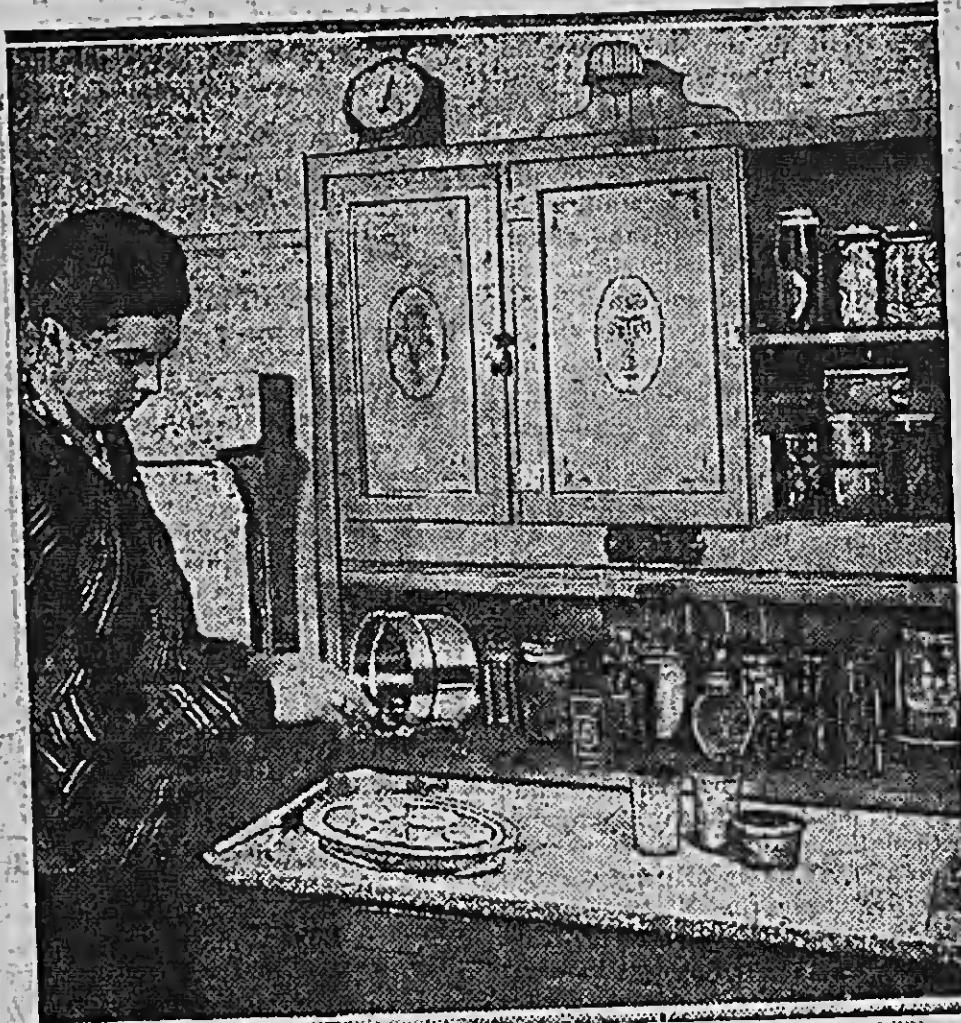

In making the dressing, measure your ingredients accurately. Mix them thoroughly. Be sure that the completed mixture is cold and moist but with no excess liquid. Select crisp salad leaves, wash them in plenty of cold water, rinse them and dry them, allowing only a particle of moisture to remain in the crevices of the leaves. Be sure that the salad bowl and plates are thoroughly chilled.

Victorine Salad (Individual) — Peel and slice off the top of a tomato. Scoop out the inside. Mix with one chopped olive, one-half teaspoon chopped onion, two teaspoons chopped celery, one teaspoon chopped green pepper, one-fourth teaspoon sugar, and two teaspoons mayonnaise. Return the mixture to the tomato. Set in lettuce leaves. Top with mayonnaise and sprinkle with minced parsley. Salad Florentine — Pare and slice thin one medium-size cucumber. Cover with cold, salted water, and let stand in refrigerator for one hour. Thin a small cream cheese with four tablespoons cream, and add one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon powdered sugar, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, and two tablespoons lemon juice. Drain and thoroughly dry the cucumber. Mix the slices in with the dressing. Spread over lettuce leaves which have been arranged on the salad plates. Slice thin six kumquats or a green pepper and scatter over the salad.

Harlequin Dressing — Serve with asparagus, tomato, or plain lettuce. Mix together one-half cup salad oil, five tablespoons vinegar, one-half teaspoon powdered sugar, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons pimientos, chopped fine, two tablespoons green peppers, chopped fine, one-half tablespoon finely chopped onion, and one-half tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Chill thoroughly in glass jar. Shake well just before serving.

Delicious Sea Food Newburg

By CAROLINE B. KING

SUNDAY night suppers at our house are the happiest affairs—and easy too, for I always have a few jars of something good on hand which I whip into a savory dish in no time. Last week it was Sea Food Newburg—nothing to it—but my guests adored it.

A half-pound glass jar each of lobster and crab meat and two smaller jars of shrimps made it. I always like to buy my fish in glass, so I can see exactly what I am getting as to size, color and texture. I fished the fish into rather large pieces, then I made a nice white sauce using two tablespoons of butter, two of flour and one and a half cups of milk, and cooked it all over hot water till nicely thickened, adding half a teaspoonful of salt, a quarter of a teaspoonful each of pepper and paprika and a tiny dash of mace. Just before adding the fish I stirred in the yolks of two eggs beaten with two tablespoons of sherry flavor, then the fish was lightly folded in and the saucepan left over hot water for five minutes while I toasted some crackers on which to serve the heavenly mixture.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

INSTEAD of pouring hot over ice, try making iced coffee by chilling the coffee in the refrigerator. This will mean less dilution from the ice in the glass, and a much more refreshing drink. The coffee should be kept in an airtight container between brewing and serving, so that it will retain its flavor and aroma.

Boots are rich in vitamins A, B and O. Also they possess calcium, phosphorus and iron, all of which is more than enough to recommend them for both children and grown-ups. A small amount of sugar added while boiling, about a teaspoon to a cup of water, restores the garden sweetness they are almost sure to have lost in greater or less degree on their way from the garden to the saucepan.

BRISTOL EASTERN STAR CONDUCTS SUCCESSFUL GUEST NIGHT, JUNE 18

Small Cyclone Causes Considerable Damage Along Geneva Road

Guest Night at the Bristol Eastern Star, which was held Wednesday evening of last week proved a big success. The officers were held by visitors from Antioch, Union Grove, Burlington, Harvard, Deloit, Silver Lake, Kenosha and Millburn. They were honored by the presence of the Grand Matron of the state of Wisconsin, Mrs. Bishop; also the Grand Lecturer from the State of Illinois and one from Yalme. The acting Worthy Matron, Mrs. Palmer, was escorted to the East by six escorts who formed an arch of tiger lilies, under which she passed. The new set of officers initiated three candidates in a beautiful manner. At the close of initiation, several short talks from the visitors were greatly enjoyed. The banquet was held at a rather late hour in the dining room, which was artistically decorated in the rays of the "Star." Music was furnished by the Bristol orchestra.

A miniature cyclone visited this community Monday evening doing considerable damage, especially along Geneva road, where small buildings, silos and trees were blown down.

A Mission is a special season when by the grace of God the eternal truths of our origin and destiny are brought home most effectively; when sinners are converted, the good are made better, and the lost sheep are reclaimed. "Come ye apart, and rest awhile," said our Blessed Lord to his Apostles.

FOR WHOM IS THE MISSION?

For the sinner, for the lukewarm, for the perfect, for all. Non-catholics are cordially invited and welcome.

WHY SHOULD I MAKE THE MISSION?

Because I want to save my soul. To encourage weary, despondent sinners to make their peace with God. "If your sins be as scarlet, they shall be made white as snow." Isa. 1:18.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 22.

The Golden Text was, "O Lord, how manifold are thy works! In wisdom hast thou made them all; the earth is full of thy riches. The glory of the Lord shall endure forever; the Lord shall rejoice in his works" (Psalms 104:24, 31).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens: God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else" (Isaiah 45:18).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science reveals only one Mind, and this one shining by its own light and governing the universe, including man, in perfect harmony" (p. 510).

Gold Star Mother Is Home After Pilgrimage to Son's Grave in France

Mrs. Mary Mann Returns—Reports Wonderful Trip

"It was the most wonderful experience of my life," Mrs. Mary Mann declared upon her return to her home Friday, June 20, after having been gone over a month on the first overseas voyage of the Gold Star Mothers of Illinois.

Leaving Antioch on May 18, she arrived in New York on the 20th, where the Mothers were given a reception at the Roosevelt Hotel. Each one was presented with a beautiful all American flag; speeches were made; and great honor was paid them. On the 21st, their boat, the Washington S. S. sailed from New York for France. All possible courtesy was shown the Mothers on the voyage.

The first stop was at Queensdown, Ireland, on the 28th. Mrs. Mann was quite overwhelmed by the beauty of the place, affirming it to be "the grandest land I ever saw or shall ever see again." Before arriving in France, a stop was made at Plymouth, England, where a change in boats was made. The Channel was quickly crossed in a "tender," and Cherbourg, France, was reached on the 30th. The party arrived too late to attend the Memorial Day services at the Suresnes cemetery; however, the graves were scheduled to be visited twice a day for the following three days. This program was carried out, the only change being that one visit was omitted on account of rain, the only rain which fell during their stay in France. Among the events of interest during these days was the visit to the unknown soldier's grave, and the trip to the Cartier de L'Armistice, where the Armistice was signed. At St. Quentin a stirring speech of welcome was delivered to the mothers, stating the purpose of the pilgrimage, and giving homage both to the American and French generals and soldiers. The Mothers especially noted how beautifully the cemeteries were cared for. Besides every grave stands a flag. Mrs. Mann was exceedingly pleased to find that the grave of her son, Willard Mann, is located in a beautiful and peaceful spot in the Somme cemetery, near Paris.

From the 4th until the 10th, their time was occupied in viewing the villages near Paris, and the scenes of the great battles, at Cambrai, Lille, Arras, Amiens, and Reuvalns. Mrs. Mann, as well as the other Gold Star Mothers, was greatly stirred by the desolation of the battlefields and destruction of buildings and property, although many efforts are being made to restore their original forms.

While in Paris, the Mothers were conducted on various sight-seeing excursions to the Sacre Coeur, to Napoleon's tomb, to Notre Dame. Mrs. Mann was much impressed by the grandeur of the buildings, with their magnificent interiors, with their marble floors and pillars. Louvre was the last place visited before departing from Cherbourg for home. Mrs. Mann has many inspiring souvenirs of her trip; among them being a gold medal and a gold star badge. On the return voyage, one of the Mothers, Mrs. C. C. Jameson of Everett, Washington, was moved to

The plate glass window of the Williams Bros. general merchandise store has been replaced. The original glass was smashed last Saturday when a woman drove her Ford touring car over the curb, striking the window. The car was not damaged, and its occupant escaped unhurt. Miss Brogan was rearranging articles in the window, when this minor catastrophe occurred, causing unexpected excitement in the store.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson and Miss Day of Waukegan spent Sunday with Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Ada Verrier.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ladlin, Chicago, have moved to their Channel lake home for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sandell have also taken up their residence at the lake for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seward are visiting at the Kennedy-Doyle home at Channel lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph James and son, Bobby, of Chicago, spent the week-end at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. James.

Frank King and his sons, Bob and Ray, and daughter, Winnie, returned last Saturday from a vacation tour of upper Michigan.

Stephen Pachel has returned to Antioch for the summer, from Chicago where he has been attending the American Art School. He expects to return there next fall.

Howard Spafford has returned to Antioch, having received his degree of M. M. D. from the School of Medicine at the University at Ann Arbor, Mich. Three years ago he received his first degree from the University. He will work as an interne at the Wesley hospital, Chicago, this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Larsen, Mr. Walter Larsen, Mrs. George Saul, Carol Saul, and Miss Wilma Chibber, from Reinbeck, Iowa, have been visitors this week at the home of Mrs. George Garland.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Zeitz of Chicago and Channel lake, held a party at their cottage at Channel lake in honor of the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Silhauck, of Channel lake. About 24 people were present. Bridge was played, and delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Duella Ferris will entertain the Thimble Bee at her home next Wednesday afternoon. Elmer Monnier returned to Antioch Wednesday, June 18, from Louisville, Ky., where he was employed at the Bowman Airfield.

GROCER TELLS WHAT KONJOLA DID FOR HIM

Again Konjola Shows Why It Is Known As The Medicine With More Than a Million Friends

MR. HARRY KERSEY

After all, results are what counts, and Konjola can be counted on for results in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Profit by the experience of others who, to their everlasting joy, put this new and different medicine to the test. Read the words of Mr. Harry Kersey, grocer, Caseyville, Illinois, who declared:

"After eating, I felt like I had a lump in my stomach, and the pain was severe. I did not rest well at night, and my vitality was low. I read so much of the wonderful results obtained from Konjola that I decided to find out for myself about this new medicine. I was not long in finding out, for three bottles solved all my health problems. I am sleeping fine; eating what I want, and have new ambition and vigor."

It is very true that Konjola does work swiftly, yet it is strongly recommended that a complete treatment of from six to eight bottles be taken if best results are to be obtained.

Konjola is sold in Antioch, Illinois, at S. H. Reeves' drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Jinx Pursues Antioch—Locals Lose to Somers in Sunday Game

SUNDAY'S SCORES

Silver Lake, 9; Wilmot, 4;
Somers, 2; Antioch, 1.

Silver Lake slapped the Wilmot Pirates, 9 to 4, Sunday and jumped to the top in the inter-county league race, while Antioch, still pursued by a jinx that apparently can't be shaken, lost a heart-breaking game to Somers, 2 to 1, thus retaining their hold on the cellar position.

Strengthened by a revised lineup, the Pirates invaded Silver Lake Sunday bent on victory to break the tie for league leadership, but Richter's masterful pitching, aided by superb support and timely hitting on the part of his team mates, smothered Wilmot's best efforts and the Pirates are now reposing in second place.

Next Sunday Silver Lake goes to Burlington to play the White Fox team in a non-league game.

Antioch Loses Tough One

An exceptional good brand of ball, featured by two lightning double plays, and heavy hitting failed to bring victory for Antioch in the game against Somers here Sunday afternoon. The locals cleaned a total of seven hits off the offerings of Dilly, while his team mates touched Miller for 10 safe drives. Two of Antioch's hits were of the three-play variety, by Nixon and Chinn, but both came with no one on base.

Antioch and Somers again clash next Sunday when the teams will play the postponed game, rained out here two weeks ago, on the Somers diamond.

DOUBLE WINDUP WILL FEATURE AMATEUR CARD AT PALACE TOMORROW

Goldblatt, Kastman, Doran, and Merriman Are Principals in Main Bouts

Cash customers at the weekly amateur boxing show at the Antioch Palace Friday night ought to get their money's worth, according to the array of leather-pushers Promoter Dick Macek has arranged on the card that promises to be the best in point of thrills yet presented for the edification of resin breathers at the local arena.

One champion, two runners-up and several crackerjack mlt pushers, and a double-windup, no doubt will prove attractive to Lake county fans and ought to help the box office end of the game very materially.

Most attractive, to local people at least, will be the melee between Danny Dorland, Florida state welter-weight champion, now a resident of Waukegan, and Don Merriman, also of Waukegan, as this is regarded more or less as a challenge bout.

The final bout of the evening will be between Benny Goldblatt, Tribune golden glove winner, and Harry Kastman, runner-up in the Central A. A. C.

The sixth bout will find Haywood Story, the "Fighting Shadow" of Chicago, again meeting John Taylor of Waukegan. Two weeks ago Taylor lost to Story, but the Waukegan fighter believes he can whip the "Shadow" by forcing the fight all the way.

Art Wohlrab, Racine, and Herb Simmons, Lake Forest, will meet in the fifth bout. Other preliminaries will bring together Earl Vermilyer, Geneva, vs. Eddie Peddle, Lake Forest; Ernie Kratochvill, Racine, vs. Lefty Smith, Chicago; Bob Brown, Grayslake, vs. Louis Sprafka, Belle

"HOLIDAYS!"

What does the word mean to us? What thoughts does it bring? High Jinks—a panorama of joys and happiness on the holidays throughout the year.

Christmas: Bulging stockings, hung precariously by the glowing fireside; a wealth of packages mysteriously wrapped; Santa Claus; good cheer and fellowship.

Thanksgiving: Stuffed turkey; plum pudding and cranberry sauce; the family together; the spirit of giving thanks.

Halloween: Spooks and goblins; pumpkin pie, and a harvest moon.

Independence Day—"The Glorious Fourth!": Waving flags; parades; the Spirit of '76 relived! Picnics, and electrical displays!

The play-days of a nation! High Jinks! Over one-sixth of our days, yearly, are days of rest and play.

Without them, this would indeed be a "work-a-day" world. To them can be attributed a large share of our pleasures and "the better things of life."

They mean much to us; and they mean much to business, too. For, as we look to holidays for additional pleasure, recreation and rest, so too, do business men look to them for additional business.

Holiday clothes; holiday food; holiday playthings. Extra "dress-up" clothes; extra food luxuries; a hundred and one EXTRA things and materials that make holidays REAL.

And just as holidays mean much to each of us and to business, so, too, do they mean much to the community. Holidays bring the town extra business; they bring visitors; they are the town's "dress-up" days. They are "community-pride" and "community-spirit" days. Let's make the most of them.

All of us join together with the wish that holidays be made days of real devotion, recreation, pleasure and rest in

THE ANTIOCH NEWS

STELLA NEEDED A VACATION AND REST

STELLA LED smiled with anticipation as she descended from the pullman at Craig station. The air was fresh from a recent shower and the countryside seemed friendly and inviting. A neat, shining car slid to a stop by the train platform and a tall, sun-burned man jumped out and approached her.

"Cousin Stella! I'm so glad to see you!"

"Cousin James! This is a pleasure! Where is Rose?"

"Trying a chicken for your supper," James answered. "These yours?"

"It was a seven mile drive to Clear Spring farm. Stella was glad that she had come. She was fond of Rose and Jim. Her middle-aged childless cousins. It had been a hard year at the office and Stella was sick of hurry and noise and jazz. She would sleep late every morning, take long walks through the woods and pastures and rock on the front porch.

That evening, when all Stella had anticipated was a quiet dinner and a delicious supper of fried chicken and gravy, hot rolls and honey and iced milk. Stella talked little, but her cousins hung on every word, eager to learn more about the new sound pleasures, which they had never seen, and to glimpse big business through the eyes of an efficient secretary.

Later Stella went with Rose and Jim after the cows and when they returned the purple and gold of sunset was fading into soft, quiet pastel shades. She watched Jim turn the separator, helped Rose feed the portly while cat and then sat in a comfortable old chair and watched the moon climb the sky. Quiet and peace; no noisy neighbors or shrilling radios or clanging traffic.

Next morning Stella was awakened at six o'clock by a shrill voice: "One two, bend left; three-four, bend right."

A radio? Horrors! But Rose referred to the innovation with frank pride. "Jimmie just got new batteries. Now we can have music and programs all day long. He likes the stock reports and the jazz, but I enjoy the cooking chats most of all."

"Things might be worse," Stella was thinking optimistically, and before noon they were. She heard an excited telephone conversation and gathered that Silas Smith, the nearest neighbor, was ill, and his wife terribly worried. Leaving Stella to prepare herself a cold snack, Rose and Jim hurried over to the Smiths. They returned late in the afternoon and when the cat stopped it seemed as if a dozen children tumbled out.

"Silas has acute appendicitis," Rose said breathlessly. "Doctor Carr took him to the city for an operation. Besides going to feed the stock and look after the children."

"You are certainly good neighbors," declared Stella. "Come here, little girl, and tell me your name."

"Jiggs," answered the six-year-old toddler, "and I want to go with my daddy."

She began howling lustily and it required the combined efforts of Rose,

Stella, and the ten-year-old twins,

Dick and Bob, to comfort her.

"Turn on the radio," Jim suggested.

"That will drown her out."

From that hour bedlam reigned.

The boys raced shouting through the house and Jiggs and Tramp, a nondescript dog, chased the terrified chickens from the front yard to back. Stella peeled a mountain-high pile of potatoes to the accompaniment of an anteux jazz orchestra some fifty miles away.

"How long will you keep the children?" one inquired of those, who was baking pies.

"Until Bessie and Silas get home, probably ten days or so. You'll get used to their noise before long."

firm name engraved in the corner.

"An emergency has arisen and I must take the next train!"

"Oh, what a pity!" cried Rose. "We were going to have such fun."

Late that same evening Stella entered her apartment. She hung wide the windows and a cool breeze came in, bearing a faint, pleasing hum of traffic. Taking up the phone, she called a nearby restaurant, ordered her dinner and while she waited for it sorted her three days' accumulation of mail. Her favorite magazine had come, she noted, and the book of the month. Turning the dials of the radio expertly, she allowed a silvery thread of music, poignant and beautiful, to enter the room. This was quiet and peace. The bridge-playing couple who lived in the apartment across from her, she recalled, had gone to the mountains on their vacation. The radio fans who lived below her had gone to the seashore. Stella tasted her shrimp cocktail and as she savored its cool, delicious flavor she let her eyes linger with pleasant anticipation on the waiting book and the soft, in-volting couch. She, too, had combarked on her vacation; a vacation—

Average Person Getting Too Little From Life

Many people are not asking enough from life, for there is more to be had if one will go to it scientifically, declares Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, famous preacher, in an article in the American Magazine.

Dr. Cadman has formulated ten questions and if the reader must admit any of the accusations, he "needs an earthquake to wake him," he says. The list is as follows:

1. Have you enough knowledge of yourself to understand what you can accomplish?

2. Are you standing still, or are you progressing?

3. Do you ever use your imagination to picture yourself in advance of where you are?

4. Do you focus your aims?

5. Do you see the relation between self-denial and self-expansion?

6. Do you wait for others to pull you along?

7. Do you strive constantly to raise the standard of your tastes and qualifications?

8. Do you mark time instead of marching?

9. Do you ask too little of religion, of morals, of marriage, or of any other factors or facts of life?

"Get down on a sheet of paper three squares," Dr. Cadman recommends further. "Let the first stand for emotions, the second for brain force, the third for will power. Then trace your actions, mental and moral. Which of these squares will contain the largest number of motivations for these actions? There is but one answer, that representing emotions. For too many of these are random outbreaks of feeling, unrestricted impulses, hunches that do not hunch."

Burning Coal Deposits

Fires in coal mines occasionally burn for years, defying all efforts to put them out. Under New Straitsville, Penn., about ten square miles, there is a coal mine fire raging which is said to have been going on since 1834. In the 46 years about $30,000,000 worth of coal in ten-foot and twelve-foot strata has been destroyed. Millions have been spent to check it. Another coal mine fire in Ohio that is estimated to have burned since 1827, was in the Hocking coal field, Belmont county. Other mining authorities mention a coal mine at Zwickau, Saxony, which caught fire in the fifteenth century and is still burning; also the "Burning Hills" of Staffordshire, England, where for years, until the fire burned out, tropical plants grew luxuriantly.

In Barren Soil

Huge trees growing without any visible means of support are one of the queer sights of the Zapata swamp of southern Cuba, which is nearly 1,800 square miles in extent. Many of the trees, some 4 feet in diameter, are found growing in limestone caverns where not so much as a single spoonful of soil can be gathered from small pockets and holes in the limestone, where collections of leaves and disintegrated rock furnish them with cover for growth. In their search for food the roots stray about over the surface of the rock, finally plunging through holes to find sustenance in soil hidden deeply in the cavernous recesses of the coral stone.

When to Cut the Tree

Rate of growth and yield in any type of forest will vary considerably with the degree of intensity with which forestry practice is carried out. Studies of growth in the Pacific Northwest, says the American Tree Association, have thus far been confined chiefly to the more important timber types. The minimum rotation (age at which the trees are cut) in the Douglas fir region has been determined as sixty to eighty years.

Faithful Dog

Doctor Dunlap of Mayfield, Maine, made a call and left his rubber on the porch. His dog, Peter, a cocker spaniel, was with him and took it upon himself to watch those rubber, which he did until the latter part of the afternoon, going without his dinner to do so, until the doctor's family was notified and came and took Peter and the rubber home. He had not noted the doctor's departure from another door.

Glories of Athens

"Porch of Maidens," the Acropolis.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

RECALLING the century of modern independence and its thousands of years of glorious memories, Greece is celebrating its centennial. The republic of today has an area of approximately 49,000 square miles and a population of some 6,000,000. But the memories of past glories cling chiefly to the plain of Athens, surrounded by its hills, with "Athens, the eye of Greece," as its center.

To every one sensitive to historical suggestion, to every one to whom beauty makes the supreme appeal, the first sight of this immortal city becomes the moment of a lifetime.

To the right rises Hymettus, famed now, as in ancient days, for the honey which the bees rifle from its flowers; to the left, and nearer, the island of Salamis, with its countless memories; to the right, the bay of Piræus, where Arcton and his hand cut down the naval battle of Salamis; still further to the left, the ranges of Parnes, extending in a full, voluptuous curve toward the east.

As one looks closer, the city reveals itself more clearly and, out-topping all, the Acropolis, with the Parthenon as its diadem. In its still beauty, its majesty and its tenderness, the scene has a vague unreality.

It is a tiny country, this heart of Greece. The Attic plain stretches from the sea in an irregular oval from south to north; the entire province contains a bare 700 square miles.

Yet Attica "balances in the universe the glory of Imperial Rome." "It is a tiny country," writes Cicero over the Greeks, who have civilized all peoples, in teaching them gentleness and humanity, and to whom Rome owes the light she possesses." Cicero, of course, meant Attica, for it was in this little country that what we call the Greek genius was most effectively at work in the Fifth century B. C.

When the visitor faces forth in the Athens past beckons to him. One of the first classic monuments his eyes are likely to rest upon is the Arch of Hadrian. This emperor, it will be recalled, was one of the principal benefactors of Athens in the value and character of his gifts. These included a water supply, a reservoir which is in use today, a library, and perhaps the Temple to Olympian Zeus. He also built the new city beyond the old one, and the arch marked the dividing line between the Greek and Roman towns.

Passing through the arch and turning to the right, one enters the precincts of the Temple of Zeus. The temple, like the buildings on the Acropolis, is of Pentelic marble, of which time has given an exquisite golden brown color, especially on the side which faces the sea. Two of the columns stand detached like sentinels and by a happy accident close the Syngro avenue, which links up modern Athens with its little seaside resort, Phaleron.

One can trace his steps through the Arch of Hadrian by a narrow street known as the Street of Lysistrates which is probably the site of the ancient Street of the Tripods.

In the age of Pericles, apart from the athletic contests which took place at the Olympic and other games, there were contests in oratory, in poetry, and in music. At Athens the victor in one of these games was given a brass tripod, with the privilege of erecting a pedestal on which to place it, somewhere in the city.

At the end of the little street stands, in almost pristine loveliness, perhaps the only surviving monument of this character. It is the exquisite little structure—the oldest extant—erected by an Athenian, Lysistrates, on which to place the tripod awarded him as the victor in a contest of young men in one of the games in the Fourth century B. C.

This little structure was built into a convent in medieval times and was thus preserved from destruction. The convent was standing in Byron's day and he was a guest there in 1811; it was not until some years later that the monument was restored at the expense of the French government.

Theater of Dionysus.

The ancient City of the Acropolis, consisting of venerable and elegant Athenian citizens, held its sittings on this hill, and it is usually assumed that it was from here that St. Paul, in A. D. 54 spoke to Athenian skeptics with a reference to an altar "To the Unknown God."

It is but a stone's throw from the Monument of Lysistrates to the Theater of Dionysus of Bacchus, to give its Roman name.

Like most Greek theaters, the tiers of seats are built into the hillside, while his arrangement is such that the spectators viewing the actors had in the distance the sea; so that as tragedy, "in spectacle" pall, came to the eye an expanse of land and water to heighten the effect produced by the action of the play.

And what names this place calls up—Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes—the long roll of the great ones of Greece!

Leaving the theater, one walks to the inevitable goal, passing on the right the precincts of Aesculapius and the various remains, including the charming Odeon built by Herod of Attica, another Roman benefactor, of the second century, A. D., and on to the Ion of the Acropolis. Passing through these and walking up the long incline, one comes to a turning on the right and sees ahead the gates, or Propylaea, of the Acropolis.

High up on the right is the little Temple of the Wingless Victory, while a corner of the Parthenon can be described over the remaining wall. A steep stairway which leads from the outer gate of the Propylaea to the upper level must be climbed before one reaches the platform on which is the Victory temple.

Perfection of the Victory Temple.

The view outward from this platform is marvellous, but the shrine compels attention. Nothing can exceed in delicacy and charm this exquisite little structure. Four Ionic columns, each some 13 feet in height, support the architrave, but so perfect are their proportions that it is only when standing beside them that one realizes that they are twice the height of a tall man.

This diminutive, yet perfect edifice was demolished by the Turks in order to build a bastion, and was later reconstructed with the fragments of the original building.

Nearby is the spot from which the aged King Aegeus took his stand to catch the first beam glittering on the sail of the returning ship in which his son Theseus had sailed to Crete to kill the Minotaur.

Inside the temple are spots to which traditions cling. In the Treasury house, at the west end, it is said was stored the booty taken at Salamis, which included Xerxes' great golden throne.

The portico commands a superb view of the Saronic gulf; at every turn names familiar as household words came to the observer's lips—Salamis, the Bay of Eleusis, the dome-like rock of Acrocorinth, Aegina, and in the distance the soft line of hills marking the Peloponnese.

Porch of the Maidens.

Turn again and you will face the "Porch of Maidens—the Caryatids. These are too familiar to everyone to require any description and elaboration, but, as with other Greek sculptures, are admired wholeheartedly. The perfection of the demperies, the radiant youth animating the figures, the dressing of the hair, massed to a few of the elements of loveliness. Despite the latter device, however, in later times it has been found necessary to make a sort of iron frame on roof.

A dozen paces from the Erechtheum, whose portico stands today in almost untarnished beauty, are the walls built by Themistocles after the destruction of the first temple by the Persians in 480 B. C. In it were used a number of the drums of the ancient columns.

Immediately below these walls lies the little hill which is pointed out as the Acropolis, or Hill of Mars. Physically, the place is of little interest. There is a short flight of steps cut in the rock, and at the top are the sites of the ancient altars.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Tichborne Heir

WHEN a legal trial lasts more than six months and costs in excess of $1,000,000 in total expenses to the state and the defendants, it is to be supposed that some definite decision will be reached. But not in the famous case of the missing heir to the Tichborne fortune, for here the decision of the court was only partially satisfactory and the adherents of the claimant to the Tichborne millions maintained to the last that the presiding judge had been tricked by a shrewd ruse on the part of the opposing counsel.

Though the final chapter in the case was written as late as 1898, the affair had its start nearly a century ago with Sir Edward Tichborne, an English baronet of considerable wealth. Sir Edward having no sons, the heir to the title was his nephew James; who, in turn, had two sons, Roger and Alfred. Roger, the elder, is described as being of a headstrong, excitable disposition and, on this account, was sent abroad for two years as a sort of probationary period to prepare him for his announced marriage with his cousin, Katherine.

It was in 1852 that Roger Tichborne resigned his commission in the British army and sailed for South America, to take part in commercial pursuits in that section of the world. After knocking about Latin-America for a little over a year, word reached him of the death of his grand-uncle and the succession of his father to the title—the Tichborne millions. Accordingly, Roger set sail from Rio de Janeiro on board the Bella, a ship which mysteriously disappeared at sea. When reached England, Lady Henrietta Tichborne, mother of Roger and Alfred, refused to credit the account of her son must have been saved—adding that Roger had appeared to her in a dream and had informed her in he was safe and that she would have no cause to worry about him, though she might not hear from him for some time.

In spite of the fact that the passage of the years brought no trace whatever of the missing man and that the death of the elder Tichborne caused his younger son, Alfred, to succeed to the title and the estate, Lady Tichborne continued her apparently useless search for Roger and, fourteen years after the loss of the Bella, detectives in her employ discovered what appeared to be a clue.

In a man named Thomas Castro, a wanderer in Australia, Castro, who bore a striking resemblance to Roger Tichborne, was brought to Paris and there "identified" by Lady Tichborne as the man who had supposedly gone down on the Bella nearly fifteen years before.

Here enters the second mystery connected with the case—the first being the strange loss of the ship at sea. Why, when her younger son already held the baronetcy and enjoyed the Tichborne fortunes, was Lady Tichborne so insistent upon locating her elder son, a ne'er-do-well, and why did she fight his claim against his "brother" up to the very moment of her death not long afterwards?

At the trial which ensued a number of Roger Tichborne's friends positively identified Castro as the missing man, while several of the sailors of the Osprey, an American vessel, testified they had rescued a number of men from a ship's boat bearing the name Bella, among them a delirious man who declared that his name was "Roger" and who was none other than this same Castro. When additional witnesses described a birthmark which Roger Tichborne had had and similar marks were found upon Castro, the case appeared to have been won by the plaintiff.

But the counsel for Alfred Tichborne demolished the whole framework of evidence by producing a sealed envelope which Roger Tichborne had given to his fiancée just before he had sailed for South America and challenged the claimant to the millions. Manifestly at a loss for an answer, Castro made a wild statement about having broken off his engagement to his cousin and having left effect. The counsel for the defense then broke open the seal and read as follows:

"If God spares me to return and marry my beloved Kate within three years, I promise to build a church and dedicate it to the Blessed Mother."

This disclosure had the effect of a bombshell and the case was immediately thrown out of court. Castro being later tried for perjury and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, after which he came to America, going back to England only shortly before his death in 1898. But there are many who claimed that the document upon which the entire case had hinged was not authentic and that the court had acted hastily in accepting it as Tichborne had accepted Castro as her elder son and emphasizing the preponderance of evidence in his favor. For this reason it cannot be stated that the many mysteries connected with the celebrated "Tichborne case" have ever been solved—nor is it likely that they ever will be.

Mother of Four Babies

"Although I am only 22 years old, I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. I had to lie down four or five times a day. After three bottles I could feel a great improvement. I still take the Vegetable Compound whenever I need it for it gives me strength to be a good mother to my family."—Mrs. Vern L. Jennings, 510 Johnson Street, Saginaw, Michigan.
